WHAT NAPOLEON DID FOR FRANCE AND FOR HIM-SELF.-He left freedom chained, equality compromised by posthumous institutions, feudalism parodied. without power to exist, human conscience re-sold. philosophy prescribed, prejudice encouraged, the human mind diminished, instruction materialised and concentrated in the pure science alone, schools converted into barracks. literature degraded by censorship, or humbled by baseness, national representation perverted, election abolished, the arts enslaved, commerce destroyed, credit annihilated, navigation suppressed, international hatred revived, the people oppressed, or enrolled in the army, paying in blood or taxes the ambition of an unequalled soldier, but covering with the great name of France the contradictions of the age, the miseries and degredation of the country. This is the founder. This is the man! -- a man instead of a revolution !-- a man instead of an epoch !- a man instead of a country !- a man instead of a nation! Nothing after him! nothing around him but his shadow, making sterile the eighteenth century, absorbed and concentrated in himself alone. Personal glory will be always spoken of as characterizing the age of Napoleon; but it will never merit the praise bestowed upon that of Augustus, of Charlemagne, and Louis XIV. There is no age; there is only a name; and this name signifies nothing to humanity but himself.

False in institutions, for he retrograded; false in policy, for he debased; false in morals, for he corrupted; false in civilization. for he oppressed; false in diplomacy, for he isolated -he was only true in war; for he shed torrents of human blood. But what can we then allow him? His individual genius was great; but it was the genius of materialism. His intelligence was vast and clear, but it was the intelligence of calculation. He counted, he weighed, he measured : but he felt not : he loved not : he sympathized with none; he was a statue rather than a man. Therein lay his inferiority to Alexander and to Cæsar: he resembled more the Hannibal of the Aristocracy. Few men have thus been moulded, and moulded cold. All was solid, nothing gushed forth, in that mind nothing was moved. His metalic nature was felt even in his style. He was, perhaps, the greatest writer of human events since Machiavel. Much superior to Cæsar in the account of his campaigns, his style is not the written expression alone; it is the action. Every sentence in his pages is, to speak, the counter-part and counter-impression of the fact .-There is neither a letter, a sound, or a color wasted between the fact and the word, and the word is himself. His phrases conceive, but struck off with ornament, recall those times when Bajazet and Charthe bottom of their imperial acts, dipped their hands in ink and blood, and applied them with their articulations impressed upon the parchment. It was not the signature : it was the hand itself of the hero thus fixed eternally before the eyes; and such were the pages of his campaigns dictated by Napoleonthe very soul of movement, of action, and of combat.

conscience, and his principle, he merited, by his nature and his talents, from war and from glory; and he has covered with it the name of France, obliged he has given it to her; but what she principally owes to him is the celebrity she has gained in the world. COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS. WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP ASTHMA and CONSUMPTION

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs, it is not our wish to trifie with the lives or health of the afflicted, but frankly to lay before them the opinions of distinguished men and some of the evidences of its success, from which they can judge for themselves. We sincerely pledge ourselves to make no wild assertions or false statements of its efficacy, nor will we hold out any hope to suffering humanity which facts will not war-

Many proofs are here given, and we solicit an inquiry from the public into all we publish, feeling assured they will find them perfectly reliable, and the medicine worthy their best confidence and patronage.
